They will also refrain from any actions that could constitute abuse of a dominant market position and any unfair behaviour, acting in the markets in good faith.

3.6 Shareholders and Investors

Grupo Codere expresses its purpose of continuous value creation for its shareholders and investors and will permanently make available to them communication and consultation channels that allow them to have adequate, useful, and complete information about the group's evolution.

4. Whistleblower Channel

Grupo Codere has a whistleblower channel that allows and guarantees confidentiality in communications, including anonymous ones, related to the commission of irregularities or acts contrary to the law or the CEI's rules of conduct.

The existence, guarantees, and contact methods of this channel in all territorial areas where Codere operates will be communicated to professionals, partners, customers, and suppliers.

The whistleblower channel is available 24 hours a day, 365 days a year, and is also open to the Group's suppliers. The complaints received are processed diligently and promptly. Their verification is promoted, and measures for their resolution are encouraged. The information is analysed objectively, impartially, and confidentially.

The confidentiality of the complaints and the protection of the whistleblower will not hinder the strict respect for the right of defence in disciplinary or other proceedings that may be initiated, according to the procedure defined for such purposes.

Guarantees of the CEI and Integrity and the Whistleblower Channel

Grupo Codere will develop the necessary measures for the effective application of the CEI.

No person, regardless of their level or position, is authorized to request that a professional commit an illegal act or contravene the provisions of the CEI. Likewise, no professional can justify improper, illegal conduct or contravene the provisions of the CEI by relying on an order from a superior.

We do not tolerate any retaliation against anyone who, in good faith, reports facts or situations that could fall within the prohibited conduct by this CEI and/or the applicable legal norms and/or the procedures or regulations established for this purpose.

In this regard, we work continuously to always align communication channels with best practices.

Complaints filed by customers will be processed through the established service channels. Grupo Codere has established the Codere Ethical Channel on the corporate website:

<https://www.grupocodere.com/canal-denuncia>

Additionally, Grupo Codere must be aware of any possible non-compliance with the CEI or applicable law to address the issue quickly and effectively. Therefore, if a violation is detected or there are doubts about whether any observed practice may constitute an act contrary to these norms, any member of the organization, business partner, or third party with a direct relationship and legitimate commercial or professional interest may immediately contact the Grupo Codere Compliance Unit through:

compliance@codere.com

The person who reports a potential non-compliance with a legal norm or the provisions of the CEI may do so by identifying themselves or, if they deem it more convenient, anonymously. Grupo Codere will not take any form of retaliation, direct or indirect, against professionals who have truthfully reported an anomalous action.

Notwithstanding the policy or procedure that may be established for these purposes, Grupo Codere expressly states that it will not tolerate any form of retaliation against anyone who, in good faith, reports any potential non-compliance with the CEI and/or the applicable legal norms and/or the procedures or regulations issued in this regard.

When it is determined that a Grupo Codere professional has engaged in activities that contravene the law or the CEI, the appropriate disciplinary measures will be applied in accordance with the applicable Collective Agreement or labour legislation, without prejudice to any internal sanction procedure or policy that may be approved by Grupo Codere.

5. Monitoring and updating the Code

The monitoring, updating, or proposal for improvement of this Code will correspond to the Compliance Unit, without prejudice to the participation of other interdisciplinary bodies within the Codere structure, as decided or approved.

Appendix I – Practical Guide to Action

Although the Code establishes criteria to guide conduct, it cannot claim to cover every possible situation and scenario. Dilemmas and circumstances may arise in which a choice must be made among several options; in such cases, the ethical and conduct principles set forth in the Code should serve as a guide for decision-making.

Below are some scenarios or situations and guidelines for action that facilitate the practical application of the Code:

- I. Questions That Can Help Us Make Decisions
- II. How to act in the event of a conflict of interest
- III. How to act when receiving a gift or token of appreciation
- IV. How to act in contractual matters.

I. Questions that can help us make decisions

If at any time Codere Group staff find themselves in a situation they believe may be subject to any of the guidelines included in the Code, the first thing they should do—once they have identified it as problematic—is to analyze it rationally and sensibly, striving to reach the best possible decision among the available options. To do so, it may be helpful to ask the following questions:

- 1. Is my decision or action contrary to the current legal and regulatory framework?
- 2. Is my decision or action influenced by family, financial, or other interests?

If the answer to any of the above questions is yes, do not make that decision or take that action.

If, on the other hand, all the answers are “no,” proceed and consider the following questions:

- 1. Have I considered all applicable rules and weighed the ethical principles and guidelines for conduct contained in this Code?
- 2. Have I considered whether my action or decision might have a negative social, economic, or environmental impact?
- 3. Would I feel comfortable and satisfied explaining my action or decision to my colleagues, family, or friends?
- 4. Would I be willing to have my decision or action made public?

If any of the answers is “no,” follow these guidelines:

1. Always seek solutions that best align with the values, principles, and guidelines set forth in the Code.
2. If you are unsure about what decision to make or how to act in a specific situation, consult with your manager or the Compliance team.

II. How to Act in the Event of a Conflict of Interest

We all have personal interests, which are legitimate, and it is inevitable that at some point in our professional careers we may face situations in which one of these interests conflicts, or may come into conflict, with our duty as an employee of the Codere Group. It is therefore possible that our professional judgment may be influenced—actually, potentially, or apparently—by that interest. However, finding ourselves in this high-risk situation is not in itself something for which we can be blamed. The problem arises when we fail to properly identify and manage the situation by taking measures to prevent any bias in the decisions we make within the scope of our professional activities.

For the purposes of this Code, a conflict of interest is understood to exist—or to potentially exist—when personal, public, and private interests converge in such a way that they may negatively affect the independent, objective, impartial, and honest performance of public duties.

A conflict of interest arises when individuals subject to the Code make decisions related to the Codere Group that affect their personal interests—whether financial or professional—by potentially benefiting or harming those interests.

What is considered a “personal interest”?

The following are considered personal interests (also sometimes referred to as private or individual interests):

1. One’s own interests.
2. Family interests, including those of a spouse or a person with whom one lives in a similar romantic relationship, and those of relatives up to the fourth degree of consanguinity or the second degree of affinity. In this regard, it is important that individuals subject to this Code take the necessary measures to prevent their personal interests from conflicting with their public office. It is the responsibility of all staff to avoid such conflicts of interest.
3. The interests of persons with whom they have a pending legal dispute.
4. Conflicts of interest involving individuals with whom they have a close friendship or an open enmity.
5. Conflicts of interest involving legal entities or private organizations with which the persons subject to this Code have had an employment or professional relationship within the two years prior to their appointment.

6. Conflicts of interest involving legal entities, whether for-profit or nonprofit, or private entities with which the relatives referred to in subsection (b) have an employment or professional relationship, provided that such relationship involves the exercise of management, advisory, or administrative functions.

What guidelines should we follow to help prevent and properly manage conflicts of interest?

In order to prevent and properly manage any conflicts of interest that may arise, individuals subject to the Code must follow these guidelines:

1. Identify and report to their supervisor any situations that may jeopardize the ability to make an objective professional judgment. For example, family, financial, or other ties that may influence decision-making.
2. Recuse oneself or refrain from acting or making decisions when it is determined that professional judgment may be affected by a personal interest.
3. If the conflict is apparent (that is, there is no actual personal interest that could influence the decision, but someone might reasonably believe that one exists), it is advisable to provide, in a clear and transparent manner, the necessary information to clarify this appearance of a conflict of interest. However, in certain circumstances (if there is a high risk that, despite the available information, the apparent conflict may still be perceived as an actual or potential conflict), it would be appropriate to consider recusing yourself or abstaining from the action or decision.

If in doubt, consult with your supervisor or the Compliance team.

III. How to Act If You Receive a Gift or Token of Appreciation

When we find ourselves in a situation where we receive a gift or other form of hospitality, as Codere Group employees, we must adhere to the following standards of conduct:

1. Refrain from accepting gifts or presents that exceed customary social courtesies, as well as favors or services offered on more favorable terms that could influence the performance of your duties.
2. If the gift exceeds the value and significance of a mere courtesy gesture (a corporate token), we will politely decline it or, if appropriate, return it to the sender with a thank-you letter, and a record of this will be kept (gift and invitation log).
3. If returning the gift is not possible or would be excessively burdensome, it must be handed over to the appropriate body to be incorporated into the Codere Group's assets, or donated or given to other organizations (e.g., museums, charitable organizations, etc.), with a corresponding entry made in the aforementioned registry.
4. In cases where we participate in any way in contracting or inspection procedures, we must exercise particular caution; as a general rule, we will decline any type of gift or invitation from companies involved in bidding processes or inspection and sanction proceedings.

Notwithstanding the foregoing, a gift or hospitality may be received or offered provided that:

- It complies with local laws.
- It is not given with the intention of influencing a third party or obtaining an undue benefit.
- It must not be done to obtain or retain a specific business or a business advantage (beyond what is normal in the context of business).
- It must not be done to obtain or exchange favors.
- It must not be done to offer or obtain personal favors, even if it does not consume the Organization's resources or take place within the context of its activities.
- It must be offered or received in a public, open, and transparent manner.
- It must not give rise to a conflict of interest.
- They must not be gifts in cash or any other form that allows for the transfer of money, which are expressly prohibited.
- They must not be offered to authorities or officials, except for gifts and courtesies of negligible value that are proportionate and reasonable according to local practice, given sporadically for legitimate and socially acceptable reasons.

A maximum limit of 200 euros (or the equivalent in local currency) is established for the acceptance of gifts or hospitality. Gifts or hospitality below this limit may be accepted without authorization. Acceptance of gifts or hospitality above this limit is not permitted and must be immediately returned or declined.

IV. How to Act in Contractual Matters

In contractual matters, individuals subject to this code of ethics must adhere to the following guidelines of conduct in the performance of their duties and responsibilities:

1. Properly plan and schedule contracting to ensure maximum efficiency in its design and in monitoring its execution, analyzing the necessity of each contract.
2. Ensure the use of contracting procedures that promote greater competition and transparency.

Annex II – Ethical Use of Artificial Intelligence

Artificial Intelligence (AI) is present in our activity: we use it to personalize the player experience, optimize internal processes, detect fraud, and support business decision-making. This reality requires us to set clear rules on how we must use it.

As professionals at Grupo Codere, we must ensure that the use of AI is always consistent with our values and with the law. Technology does not exempt us from responsibility: we are the ones who decide how and for what purpose we use it.

This section establishes ten mandatory principles for all Group professionals who use, acquire, manage, or oversee AI systems, regardless of their hierarchical level or area of activity.

I. Human Oversight and Accountability

AI can help us make better decisions, but it cannot replace human judgment. Final responsibility for any decision affecting people—employees, customers, or partners—always rests with a Group professional.

What must we do?

- Any AI-supported decision with legal, economic, ethical, or reputational consequences must be reviewed and validated by a professional with sufficient authority before it is implemented.
- Not delegate what is ours. No AI system can be the formal owner of a decision. That responsibility always belongs to a person.
- Be able to explain what we decide. If we use AI to reach a decision, we must be able to explain the reasoning to anyone who asks.

II. Legality and Regulatory Compliance

The AI systems we use must comply with the legislation in force in each country where we operate. This includes European AI regulations, gaming regulations, and consumer protection rules applicable in each jurisdiction.

What must we do?

- Before implementing any AI system intended for processes affecting customers, employees, or business operations, ensure that it has been properly validated.
- Not use AI to circumvent controls. It is prohibited to use AI tools to avoid, manipulate, or bypass internal controls, procedures, or any legal obligation.
- Stay up to date. AI regulations evolve rapidly. When in doubt about whether a specific use complies with the law, consult your manager.

III. Fairness and Non-Discrimination

AI systems can reproduce or amplify existing biases in the data they were trained on. At Codere, we do not accept technology treating any person unfairly on the basis of gender, origin, age, religion, disability, or other characteristics protected by law.

What must we do?

- Detect and correct biases. If you identify that an AI system produces results that unfairly discriminate against certain people or groups, you must report it to your manager.
- Not take everything AI generates at face value. A result produced by an algorithm is not necessarily neutral simply because it was generated algorithmically. Critically evaluate results before using them.

IV. Transparency and Justification

People have the right to know when a decision affecting them has been made or influenced by an AI system, and to receive a comprehensible explanation of the reasons. At Codere, we are committed to being transparent in our use of these technologies.

What must we do?

- Inform when appropriate. If a decision affecting an employee, customer, or supplier has been made with AI support, you must be able to communicate this and explain the criteria applied.
- Document the use of AI. AI systems used in relevant decisions must be recorded in a way that allows traceability in case of later review or audit.
- Not use AI covertly. It is prohibited to present the output of an AI system as a person's own opinion or decision without referencing it, when doing so could be misleading.

V. Data Protection and Privacy

The use of AI does not change our data protection obligations. When an AI system processes personal information, the General Data Protection Regulation and the Group's internal data protection policies must be respected, with special rigor given the scale at which the technology can operate. on especial rigor dada la escala a la que puede operar la tecnología.

What must we do?

- Use only the necessary data. Do not enter more personal information into AI systems than is strictly necessary for the specific purpose pursued.
- Not covertly monitor. It is prohibited to use AI to monitor employees' behavior without their knowledge or without sufficient and proportional legal basis.
- Assess impact before implementation. Any AI system that processes personal data on a large scale requires a Data Protection Impact Assessment before going live.

VI. Security and Integrity

AI must not become a tool for deceiving, falsifying, or compromising the integrity of information. Any use of AI that undermines honesty or the Group's controls is a violation of this Code.

What must we do?

- Falsifying information. Using AI tools to generate false or misleading documents, data, reports, or communications, whether for internal or external use.
- Impersonating identities. Using AI to impersonate another person, employee, executive, or entity, whether within or outside the Group.
- Circumventing internal controls. Using AI systems to avoid, disable, or manipulate the Group's compliance, security, or audit controls.

VII. Confidentiality and Intellectual Property

External AI tools—such as text assistants, code generators, and cloud platforms—may store or reuse the information they receive. For this reason, we must be very careful about what information we enter into them.

What must we do?

- Not share confidential information in unauthorized tools. It is prohibited to enter personal data, customer information, financial data, strategic information, or any other sensitive Group data into external AI tools that have not been expressly approved.
- Use only authorized tools. The Group will publish and maintain an up-to-date list of AI tools approved for professional use. Using tools outside that list requires prior authorization.
- Respect intellectual property. AI-generated content may incorporate copyright-protected material. Before publishing or distributing AI-generated content, verify that it does not infringe third-party rights.

VIII. Responsible Gaming and AI

Responsible gaming is a fundamental pillar of our activity and one of our most important commitments to society. The use of AI in areas such as marketing, personalization, or risk detection requires special caution: technology must never be used to harm players.

What is prohibited?

- Directing communications to at-risk players. It is expressly prohibited to use AI systems to send promotions, incentives, or stimuli of any kind to players identified as being at risk or who have activated self-exclusion measures.
- Configuring algorithms to maximize spending by vulnerable players. Recommendation, personalization, and retention systems must not be designed to exploit compulsive or problematic behavior patterns.
- Using manipulation techniques. It is prohibited to use AI to apply psychological influence techniques that exploit players' vulnerabilities to increase their gaming activity.

What must we do?

- Periodically audit systems. Any AI system with a direct impact on the player experience must be periodically reviewed to verify it does not generate effects contrary to responsible gaming.
- Report concerning behavior. If you detect that an AI system is producing harmful effects on players, report it immediately to your manager and, if necessary, through the Whistleblowing Channel.

IX. Training and Awareness

Responsible use of AI requires knowledge. Good intentions are not enough: it is necessary to understand how these tools work, what risks they entail, and what our obligations are when using them.

What must we do?

- Complete mandatory training. The Group will provide specific training on the responsible use of AI tailored to each professional profile. Completion is mandatory for all professionals who use AI tools as part of their work.
- Stay up to date. Technology and regulation evolve rapidly. It is each professional's responsibility to stay current on matters affecting their area of activity.
- Share knowledge. If you identify risks, best practices, or situations that could be useful to the Group, share them with your manager or the control areas.

X. How to Report Non-Compliance

If you observe a use of AI that violates this Code, that could harm people, or that poses a risk to the Group, you have an obligation to report it. Failing to do so may also be considered non-compliance.

How can I report it?

- Group Whistleblowing Channel. Available to all professionals and third parties related to the Group, anonymously if you prefer. This is the standard channel for reporting any conduct contrary to this Code.
- Your direct manager. If the matter does not involve your manager and you believe it can be handled with appropriate discretion.
- Control areas. The Audit, Compliance, and Legal departments. Especially when the matter has legal or regulatory implications.
